A DECADE OF CHANGE, A FUTURE OF PROGRESS

In 2012, education, business, and community leaders from across the Rio Grande Valley had a clear vision for student success in the region. They knew it would take all facets of the community partnering together to ensure students received the education they needed to achieve meaningful careers and lives. The result was RGV FOCUS and una década de cambio.

Over the last decade, about half a million students in the Rio Grande Valley have been better prepared for postsecondary programs and employment facilitated by RGV FOCUS, a collaboration with Educate Texas.

This Annual Report shares new data from our 10th year and stories about our work from across our diverse, dedicated, four-county RGV community. As we look ahead, we are more focused than ever on the next decade of change. In short: Ensuring all RGV students succeed in school, in the workforce, and in life.

Our Mission

Our mission is to transform college readiness, access, and success in the four counties of the Rio Grande Valley: Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr, and Willacy.

Our Vision

Our vision is for all RGV learners to achieve a degree or credential that leads to a meaningful career.

RGV FOCUS is committed to supporting Educate Texas’ statewide 2025 Strategic Plan by achieving

TWO ESSENTIAL GOALS IN OUR REGION:

1. Contributing to the Educate Texas statewide goal of 85,000 new postsecondary degrees, credentials, and certificates by 2025
2. Enabling schools to better attract, prepare, develop, and retain more high-quality and diverse teachers to improve our state’s effective teaching workforce

REDOUBLING EFFORTS TO INCREASE COLLEGE ENROLLMENT AND COMPLETION RATES
- Creating stronger alignment and coordination across K-12, higher education, and workforce
- Hosting action networks around access and persistence/completion
- Helping increase & leverage HB3 Outcomes Bonus Funding through a region-wide College Career Military Readiness Professional Learning Community (CCMR PLC)

“While there’s more work to be done with college enrollment and completion, we are pleased to see the Valley rebounding so well post-pandemic. Our collective efforts are paying off; we’ve maintaining the progress we’ve been making for years and continue to outpace the state on many indicators.”
- Chris Coxon, Managing Director, Educate Texas
Educate Texas Managing Director Chris Coxon clearly remembers a call in late 2011 from RGV native and longtime educator Alma Garcia, who was making headway on implementing the early college high school model at scale in the Valley and felt that a collective impact initiative could support the model and advance the region.

“She saw the pressing need for a systematic, region-wide approach - vs. district by district - to improve education from cradle to career in her home, the Valley,” said Coxon. “She was willing to do whatever it took to make it happen.” With the help of Educate Texas, anchor funding from the Greater Texas Foundation, and a hard-and-fast commitment by education, community, and business leaders across the four counties within the Rio Grande Valley, the RGV FOCUS initiative came to life.

Traci Wickett, former President & CEO at United Way of Southern Cameron County and an early education and workforce trailblazer, recalls being part of the inaugural RGV FOCUS leadership team. “We quickly recognized that we were so much stronger together than we were separately - and the danger of working in silos,” said Wickett.

She points to sharing accountability across organizational boundaries and normalizing the use of data “not as a weapon, but as a flashlight” as two of the most important practices the team learned and adopted.

Wickett, Coxon, current RGV FOCUS Director Rebeca Lopez, and many other involved leaders call out specific educational strategies and relationships that were core to raising up a region that, at the time, was the lowest performing in the state. However, all agree that progress wouldn’t have been possible without alignment and the “strategic glue” provided by RGV FOCUS. “Systemic change doesn’t happen without someone analyzing outcomes data and determining the strategies that will drive the most impact - and those strategies have to work at scale, from the smallest districts, like La Villa, to the largest, like Brownsville,” said Coxon.

Dr. Daniel King, Executive Director of the Region One Education Service Center and Former Superintendent of Pharr-San Juan-Alamo ISD, was involved with RGV FOCUS from day one. He points to many “big wins” across the ten years, including markedly increasing FAFSA completion rates and a 4 county-wide agreement between high schools and higher education institutions about what would be deemed “college ready.”

While much progress has been made, Lopez says the focus is now on ensuring students in the Valley have exposure and access to career pathways, internships and work-based learning experiences, as well as supports for postsecondary persistence and completion, that will allow them to pursue a career with a living wage after high school.

King agreed and said, “RGV FOCUS has definitely had a good impact. I think we all agree that now, post-COVID and with many leadership changes, it’s important to revisit, refresh, and reenergize the program. Should the program change in any way? Are we still measuring the right things? A decade in, it’s a good time to reflect.”

Wickett adds, “The challenge now is to keep the fire burning with the same intensity it has been for a decade. We won’t be seeing the same degree of change and we’ll be going for the more difficult wins. But we’ll continue to move the needle if we use data as our guide and keep people working together.”

“Ten years later, the Valley now matches or outpaces the state in 9 out of 12 educational learning indicators. We’re making an impact, and there’s still much work to do.”
